Mrs. Vanderbilt told French officers escorting the party that she 'hoped to hear the cannon." She got her wish. One night, while the party was sleeping at Pont-a-Mousson, the Germans opened a heavy bombardnent that wrecked several nearby houses and sent the party rushing into a reinforced cave. Mrs. Vanderbilt had time only to throw a loose wrapper over her nightgown as she ran

At another place she approached so near the trenches that a French soldler warned her that one of his comrades had been killed near the spot where she was standing only five minutes before.

Mrs. Vanderbilt paid a visit to Verdun and was the first American woman to enter the city since the Germans began their attack.
